Louisville Metro law requires all food service establishments to employ food managers or food service personnel who are certified in:

FOOD SAFETY AND SANITATION COURSE for FOOD SERVICE MANAGERS

This program is administered by the Louisville Metro Division of Environmental Health and Emergency Preparedness and is designed to provide food managers and food handlers with safe food handling procedures as well as up-to-date recommendations and information about food code requirements and how foodborne illnesses can occur.

The course is made up of two parts: home study and classroom instruction with a final test. The home study part prepares the applicant for the two-hour class instruction and one-hour test. Classes and testing are provided by Martha Gregory & Associates Inc. All applicants completing and passing the course will be issued a certificate by the Louisville Metro Division of Environmental Health and Emergency Preparedness. Certification is valid for three (3) years.

If you are currently certified in ServSafe Manager, Certified Professional Food Manager, or National Registry for Food Safety Professionals, and submit proof of certification, you do not need to take our course. When proof of current certification in any of these programs is submitted, we will issue a Food Safety and Sanitation Course for Food Service Manager certificate. The cost is $35.

Local ordinance requires that a certified individual be on duty whenever the food establishment is operating.

The certificate must be available for review in the establishment at all times. Failure to comply with this ordinance may result in a fine.
