

The Planning Office of the Future

June 3, 2015; 4-5:30pm

New technologies. Evolving expectations. A variety of forces are changing the way planners work, the skills they need, even the issues they address. An APA task force recently spent a year looking into the planning office of the future. Learn about the findings and hear what practitioners have to say about recent changes. (CM/1.5)

2015 Planning Law Review

June 24, 2015; 4-5:30pm

Planning feels the impact of decisions from the U.S. Supreme Court, federal district courts, and state courts. How will their rulings affect you? Get a briefing on the year's legal developments. (CM/1.5)

Post-Disaster Recovery in a Changing Climate

September 24, 2014; 4-5:30pm

Demographic shifts and climate change are making disasters bigger and costlier. Gradually, the nation is moving toward more effective long-term recovery, while communities are working to become more resilient. But greater resilience calls for more sophisticated planning. (CM/1.5)

“You Said That?!”

October 8, 2014; 4-5pm

Information about planning is of little use unless it can be communicated effectively and clearly to the public and press. Learn to navigate those waters and come out on top. This lecture will give participants the skills to develop memorable messages, give media interviews, make public presentations, and handle community meetings. (CM/1)

Health Equity and Planning Ethics

November 5, 2014; 4-5:30pm

Equity and Ethics are not identical, but they do interact. Listen as AICP planners and allied health professionals probe this important topic. How is health equity being addressed, and how does it relate to planning? Examine the role equity plays in various ethical frameworks and find out how communities and planners are taking on health equity. (CM/1.5)

2014-2014 APA Sponsored Program Options

The Pro Forma

December 3, 2014; 4-5pm

Behind every development project is a financial analysis and projection called a pro forma. While developers prepare for the pro forma, it's a crucial tool for planners, too. It tells what developers can and cannot afford to do, and what assistance they may seek. This lecture examines key elements of pro formas. Learn how to review the analysis and check the assumptions. (CM/1)

Safe Mobility Training

January 21, 2015; 4-5:30pm

Growing numbers of people are commuting and getting around town by bicycle. Explore the safety issues that go with more robust transportation options. Hear about safety and accessibility concerns for a range of populations. Discover how plans for transportation, capital improvements, and long-term goals can merge to improve safety. (CM/1.5)

Sustaining Places Through the Comprehensive Plan

February 18, 2015; 4-5:30pm

Sustainability and comprehensive planning can run on two separate tracks within local government. To create sustaining places, the programs have to come together. APA has worked with 13 communities to develop standards for integrating sustainability into comprehensive plans. Co-sponsored by Lincoln Institute of Land Policy. (CM/1.5)

Urban Design, Sustainability, and the Environment

March 11, 2015; 4-5pm

Delve into key topics on the AICP Certified Urban Designer exam. See how environmental planning and sustainability goals fit into urban design. Look at the way urban designers address the built and natural environments, historic preservation, adaptive reuse, building retrofits, and more. (CM/1)

Planning Commissioner Ethics

April 20, 2015; TBD

The decisions that come out of planning commissions need to be fair, inclusive, legal, and in sync with sound planning. Meeting those standards is the responsibility of every planning commissioner and official. Hear from veteran planning commissioners, an attorney, and planning directors and staff who work with commissioners. (CM/TBD)

Big Chance Lecture

May 13, 2015; 4-5pm

If you had one chance, what would you say to planners? Bruce J. Katz, founding director of the Brookings Metropolitan Policy Program, steps up to the challenge in APA's inaugural Big Chance lecture. What he has to say is sure to resonate with planners everywhere. (CM/1)

CM Credits— AICP certified Planners will be able to receive credits for attending these events. After each session, you will be able to log your credits here or at <https://www.planning.org/cm/log/>
